SANTA CLARITA, CA. "Support is solid across party lines" that we are concerned about the affected of money on our government. A community collaborative is ripping off the secrets of money with two educational seminars in January that highlight the effects of the Fair Election Act on the June 2010 ballot.

The future of California's budget is no joke and goes beyond the political bickering and frightening comments from the media. Here is an opportunity to understand the intricate details and revelations added to what you learned in high school.

The first event, on January 14, 7PM titled: "How to Survive the Economic Tsunami" by Mark Pash, MBA, CFP®, a 37-year financial veteran, who is one of California's top financial planners, will address his ten-year prediction on current economic conditions. Listed by SFV Business Journal as one of the top 50 advisor firms, Pash will provide background, theory, and policy changes that lead to the negative financial charges. This is a hopeful explanation on President Barack Obama's regulations and oversight and suggestions on how to you may approach your 2010 financials. Bring your small business, nonprofit, and profit company and tax questions. Visit the following websites: <http://www.monetary.org/> and <http://economicsfordemocrats.com/>

The second event is on January 21, 7PM and deals with the California Fair Elections Act <http://www.yesfairelections.org/>, which will be reviewed by initiative experts Trent Lange and Robin Gilbert who will provide the guidelines, proposed in the Fair Election Act.

"Fair elections is the common-sense reform to our broken government," says Robin Gilbert, state community outreach coordinator, "there are so many changes that need to be made in our communities and our state yet if our elected officials are not accountable to us, they will be accountable to those who paid for their campaigns. As Molly Ivins wrote "You got to dance with them that brung you, one of the oldest sayings in politics that points to the reality that special-interest money rules today's politics".

Both events are FREE, doors open at 6:30PM for socializing, and will be at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 24901 Orchard Village Road, (Orchard Village & Lyons Avenue) across the street from Ralph's Market in Newhall. Refreshments will be served. Parking is free, but limited; arrive early to socialize for the townhall-style discussion. Bring your probing questions.
