Thousand Oaks Library, 1401 East Janss,

Suite @ N#23 7:00 P.M - 8:30 P.M.

"We will never know the worth of water till the well is dry"

-Thomas Fuller, Gnomologia, 1732

Water, along with oxygen, is the lifeblood to all creatures and activities on earth. 80% of the water is used as irrigation to grow our food. What are the realities of the water situation?

How can water be sustainable? What can YOU do? Doan will offer his views from an architect and urban planner/designer perspective on this critical topic; born in Vietnam, studied architecture in Belgium, graduated from Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, worked in Orange County before moving to Ventura County.

- Chair of the Ventura County Civic Alliance,
- Board member of the Housing Conference, Livable Communities Working Group and the Congress of New Urbanism.
- Advocate for diverse affordable housing, green/sustainable development & preservation of all nature.
- Project Leader: Oxnard's Advanced Water Purification Facility & Expansion of the Thous. Oaks Municipal Service Center/Household Hazardous Waste facility

A question and answer period follows presentation. The program is free, open to the public.
